“The New Push for Regional Organizations in Latin America”

Tuesday, November 18, 2014, 3-5 PM

Deutz Room in the Copley International Conference Center,
Institute of the Americas Complex, UCSD

Latin America has historically been interested in promoting international relations through international institutions and organizations. In the contemporary period there is a new push in the region for organizations whose origins and focus give primacy to the needs of Latin America as defined by Latin Americans. Ambassador Carrión has been both a participant and an observer of this process of regional creation. Please join us for a stimulating conversation. Amb. Carrión is also interested in developing collaboration between FLACSO-Ecuador and UCSD, so please bring your ideas as well. Coffee and cookies will be available.

Amb. Francisco Carrión Mena is the Coordinator of International Affairs for FLACSO-Ecuador. He is a former Minister of Foreign Affairs (2005-2007), Ambassador to Spain (2000-2007) and Ecuadorian Representative to the United Nations (2009-2011). Amb. Carrión has a PhD from the Universidad Central del Ecuador and has published widely on international law, migration and Ecuador's foreign policy.
