Jorge Cocom Pech was born in Calkini, Campeche, Mexico. He has published poetry, narratives, and essays in the Mayan peninsular language as well as Spanish.

In 2005 he received the International Prize for Poetry awarded by the International Eastern-Western Academy in Romania. He will read fragments from Muk’ult’an in Nool, Grandfather’s Secrets, a text that captures the traditional oral narrative inherited from his ancestors. He will also share from his work, Yáajal piik sásase or The Waking of Dawn, a poetic work that received a fellowship from the National Fund for Culture and Art in 1997-98 and the BANFF International Center.

His poetry has been translated into many languages, French, Greek, Romanian, Catalan, Russian, Italian, Serbian, English, Czech, Hebrew, German, and Portuguese. Muk’ult’an in Nool, Grandfather’s Secrets was translated into French by Ricardo Rueda as Les Secrets de l’aïeul in 2007.
